^{1/} This table refers only to attorney fees for claimants. Attorney fees for employers and insurance carriers are not regulated by State statutes or regulations.

^{7/} North Dakota: A non-legal workers' advisor program provides assistance to injured workers, independent of the administrative claims processes and prior to the administrative hearing process; attorney fees may not be paid for claimants unless they have first used the advisor process.

^{8/} Ohio: However, laypersons are permitted to represent claimants at administrative hearings, if no fee is charged.

^{9/} Tennessee: Employer attorney fees in excess of $13,037.96 require court approval. The threshold will be adjusted each July.

^{*} Attorney fees are paid from the compensation award. However, a party may be assessed additional attorney fees in connection with a patently frivolous appeal and under court Rule 38 in connection with pre-hearing conferences.
